

Connecting the dots to catalyse change:

Interactions among the SDGs are crucial. In some cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally hinder progress towards another. Such trade-offs are likely to make the overall achievement of the goals more difficult and inefficient unless they are identified and managed. In other cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally support progress towards another. These synergies provide exceptional opportunities for investment and targeting. Investing in these types of actions provides a valuable opportunity to work towards multiple SDGs: it enables countries with limited resources to invest efficiently and avoid unintended trade-offs.

Interactions among SDGs are crucial

Interactions among the SDGs are crucial. In some cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally hinder progress towards another. Such trade-offs are likely to make the overall achievement of the goals more difficult and inefficient unless they are identified and managed. In other cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally support progress towards another. These synergies provide exceptional opportunities for investment and targeting. Investing in these types of actions provides a valuable opportunity to work towards multiple SDGs: it enables countries with limited resources to invest efficiently and avoid unintended trade-offs.

1) In some cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally hinder progress towards another. Such trade-offs are likely to make the overall achievement of the goals more difficult and inefficient unless they are identified and managed.

Such trade-offs are likely to make the overall achievement of the goals more difficult and inefficient unless they are identified and managed. In other cases, actions taken to achieve one SDG may unintentionally support progress towards another. These synergies provide exceptional opportunities for investment and targeting. Investing in these types of actions provides a valuable opportunity to work towards multiple SDGs: it enables countries with limited resources to invest efficiently and avoid unintended trade-offs.

1) SDGs also frequently reinforce each other – Actions to achieve one goal can favour progress towards one or more of the other goals. These synergies provide exceptional opportunities for investment and targeting them will reap maximum rewards.

Investing in these types of actions provides a valuable opportunity to work towards multiple SDGs: it enables countries with limited resources to invest efficiently and avoid unintended trade-offs.

Investing in these types of actions provides a valuable opportunity to work towards multiple SDGs: it enables countries with limited resources to invest efficiently and avoid unintended trade-offs.

[illegible]

Signatories, please note that affiliations are for identification purposes only:

[illegible]

SSRP

... ..